

In the midst of the storm
My tears fall like rain
So I try to hide my face
To keep anyone from seeing my pain

My heart is so heavy
The load is too much to bear
I feel as though I'm drowning and no one cares

Consumed by the many thoughts
Running through my mind
I find it hard to focus
All I want is to hit rewind

Watch it replay over and over again
Analyzing the situation that I'm in

How do I move forward
Letting go of the past
The Lord answered, I thought you'd never ask

Total surrender is what I need
You shall have no other Gods before me
See my yoke is easy and my burden is light
Plus I've given you everything you need to win this fight

Count it all joy
When storms come your way
Because in the midst of the storm
You begin to pray and walk by faith

So hold your head high
Know that it's alright to cry
Tears have been known to purify

Trust me when I say
I am with you to the end
P.S. Love Jesus
Your dependable
And always on time friend

*Copyright June 6, 2013
Written by Sheila Stamper*