

I Surrender

I laid it all down
Only to pick it up again
Why would I do that?
When I've been cleansed of my sins

Why would I return
To the things that caused so much grief
The answer I can't seem to find
So I sit in disbelief
Wondering how could this happen again
Especially to me

Did I leave a door open?
Did I not pray loud or long enough?
While I'm searching for the answer
Enemy is walking away with all my stuff
Integrity, self-esteem, boldness and confidence
Replaced by shame, fear and patterns of distress

Too many questions eventually lead to doubt
So I enter my prayer closet
Then I prepare to clean my house

One more time
I'm declaring and decreeing
Nothing by any means shall hurt or harm me

See I've been through the fire
I've weathered the storm
It is by the blood, grace and mercy of the Lord
That I'm able to carry on

I'm still learning to lean on Jesus
Adapt to his plan not mine
As I bask in his presence
Through fasting and prayer
Slowly the real me begin to appear

I laid it all down
At the throne of God
Asking Jesus to wash me, cleanse and search my heart

I surrendered all that I am
Now I'm ready for a new start
I'm positioned to transition
To a deeper relationship and higher level in God
